COMMUNITY CANVASS FOR CEREBRAL PALSY TUESDAY, MAY 1, 1956 - 7-9 P.M.

Eight thousand volunteer women from every part of the Borough of Queens will give two hours of their time on Tuesday evening, May 1, 1956 in order to raise money for United Cerebral Palsy of Queens. The ladies will go from door-to-door from 7 to 9 P.M. asking their neighbors to contribute to the palsy group.

Divided into some forty-seven individual community drives, the local leaders will pool their results in an effort to bring $10,000 to the United Cerebral Palsy Headquarters. The funds received from the May 1st Community Canvass will be used as heretofore to carry on the broad county wide program of aid to the cerebral palsied. Dr. Ovid Slavin of Douglaston, Program Chairman, advises that a minimum of $100,000 will be needed at this time to continue the program of therapy, education, counseling recreation, dental and medical care, and occupational therapy now being operated in whole or part by the CP Group. School facilities are conducted at Public Schools 7 and 118, a clinic is aided at Long Island Jewish Hospital, a Day Camp is conducted

VETERAN NEEDS CARRIAGE FOR TWIN BABIES

A disabled Far Rockaway Korean veteran needs a double carriage for twin babies and today the Central Chapter of Queens American Red Cross Home Service Department appealed for a donation. The veteran is Arthur Jennings who needs the carriage for his twins Michael and Michelle born on December 9, 1955. Jennings who is sixty per cent disabled is attending school under the G. I. bill and has only his school allowance and his disability pay. The only time the babies have been out is when they have been carried by the mother and father.

Miss Caroline Flanders, Social Service Administrator for the Red Cross Chapter stated that the donated carriage will be picked up anywhere in Queens and arrangements can be made by calling Republic 9-6880, extension 27.

Royal Dalyrlmple was installed by Judge Wm. B. Groat for his 24th term as president on April 24. We wish Mr. Civic Association many more active years.

Parent Teacher Relationship

It is most important that the relationship between a child's parent and his teacher be a good one. Although it is commendable that the teacher and parent meet at least once during the child's stay in any one class, it is not always ecessary. The child may be the only medium through which the relationship is established, but it may still be a favorable one. The teacher has to establish rapport between herself and thirty or more parents, while the parent usually mly has a small number of teachrs to consider during the term.

The matter to be considered is low can the parent foster good reations between herself and the eacher. The key word here is cooperation. There must be complete properation between the parent and the teacher. No half way measures will do.

The attitude toward the teacher expressed by the parent especially n front of the child is of great enificance. Never must the parent belittle the teacher or adversey criticize her in the child's presence. The parent may not be sware of the purpose of a certain firective given the child by the eacher, but no matter what the parent thinks of the directive, no infavorable comment should be made to the child. A little reflection will probably make the parent realize the teacher is not merely being arbitrary in giving her directions, but that she has some reasonable purpose in mind. The parent should see to it that the shild does as he is directed by the teacher. This is particularly true n the matter of homework assignments obedience to school regulations.

Parents most often offend in the matter of parent, teacher relations, when the child has been admonished by the teacher. Often a pupil is admonished or disciplined for an infraction of a school rule. Sometimes it is for downright disobedience or impertinence. The child takes his version of the story home and to hear him tell the tale one might think the little culprit perfectly innocent. This is the time the parent must show perfect selfcontrol and question the child until the truth of the matter will out. If the parent is persistant enough the child will usually break down and tell the truth. It is then the task of the parent to make the child realize he is wasting his own and every one elses time with his misconduct.

Another way in which a parent may cooperate with the teacher is to insist the child recognize the authority of the parent in the teacher during the hours he is under instruction. Many children rebel against this idea and often disobey with such comment as, "You cant make me do - this or that. You're not my mother." This attitude must be eradicated and the child made to understand that he is obliged to obey his teacher because his parents demand such obedience

Where the parent upholds the teacher there is usually very little misconduct and little cause to use stern disciplinary measures. The child knowing he cannot fake or lie his way out of a bad classroom situation or realizing no excuse for misconduct will be tolerated by his parents will think twice before he deliberately gets into trouble.

THE CAR NEEDS EXERCISE TOO

If you want your car to last longer and give less trouble, drive

That's the advise of AAA ex-

Lic. L1639

and unquestionable perts who say that just as a person needs a certain amount of exercise, an automobile needs to be exercised beyond the day-to-day slow routine of work and shopping.

What you should do, the experts say, is head for the open road now and then and give the car a good workout. That doesn't mean speeding but a good brisk run of a few miles.

Such a workout will free sticky valves in the engine, remove soot from spark plugs, ease brakes which have been grabbing and charge up the battery.

Most cars, service experts declare, never really get warmed up during the average daily use.

The motorist has finaly won the "battle of the cows" in Georgia, where the legislature has passed a bill to fine farmers who allow livestock to roam at large. In the last six years the state reported 1,000 acidents involving cars and cows.

Glamour Dessert Is Calorie-Shy

Diet-conscious guests will applaud this Apricot Dessert Jelly. It's lovely to look at, delightful to taste, and low, low in calories—what more could anyone ask of a dessert?

Get out your prettiest mold and make this shimmering dessert in the morning, or even the day ahead, so that the gelatin will have plenty of time to set.

Nothing could be easier. Canned apricots are sieved, gently spiced, wixed with gelatin, and sweetened with Sucaryl, the new non-caloric sweetener. This is the sweetener that never turns bitter in cooking and baking. Here it is used to replace all of the sugar in the recipe, with the happy result that there are just 44 calories in each serving. Had the dessert been made with sugar, it would contain almost 3 times as many calories!

Unmold the apricot jelly on an attractive platter. Garnish, if you like, with apricot halves and dollops of sour cream. Serve to "slims" and "would-be's" alike. Then sit back and await the compliments.

Apricot Dessert Jelly

2 cups drained water-pack

apricots (3 8-oz. cans)

4 cup apricot liquid

1 envelope unflavored gelatin 6 whole cloves

1 cup boiling water 4 teaspoons Sucaryl solution or 32 tablets

½ teaspoon salt 2 teaspoons lemon juice

Rub apricots through sieve or food mill. Mix apricot liquid with gelatin; set aside. Add cloves to boiling water; cover and simmer 5 minutes; remove cloves. Stir in softened gelatin until dissolved; remove from heat. Add the dissolved gelatin, Sucaryl, salt and lemon juice to sieved apricots. Pour into a 3-cup mold or into 6 individual molds. Chill until firm.

A SMILE

A smile is quite a funny thing, It wrinkles up your face And when it's gone you never find It's secret hiding place. But far more wonderful it is To see what smiles can do; You smile at one he smiles at you

And so one smile makes two. He smiles at some-one, since you smiled

And then that one smiles back And that one smiles, until in truth You fail in keeping track.

And since a smile can do great good By cheering hearts of care,

Let's smile and smile, and not forget

That smiles go everywhere.

Under the capable direction of Miss. Kathy Burggraf, the members of the Confraternity Club did a set of Square Dancing for the TV program, and received such wide acclaim that Miss. O'Brien has invited them back on the show for the afternoon of May 29th. Jeanie is planning to visit

P.S. 18 DEDICATED

Public School 18 in Queens Village, Queens, erected at a total cost of $1.4 million, was dedicated at exercises on Wednesday morning (April 25) under the chairmanship of Dr. Charles F. Rank, Vice President and Queens Member of the Board of Education.

Known as the Winchester School and having an enrollment capacity for 727 pupils in grades K-6, it has been open since September. The school is situated at Hillside Avenue and 235 Court.

Sharing the platform with Dr. Rank was Vito F. Lanza, the other Queens Member of the Board of Education; James A. Lundy, the Queens Borough President; and William Jansen, City Superintendent of Schools.

The school community was represented on the program by Mrs. George E. Polhemus, chairman of the local school board for the area; Mrs. Ruth Nesi, president of the Parent-Teachers Association; Sophie Kosky, the principal; and room-playroom.

Joan Feinstein, a pupil.

The religious portion of the program was in charge of Rev. Bruce G. McGraw, Minister of the Queens Baptist Church, invocation; Rabbi Israel Jacobs, spiritual leader of the Bell Park Jewish Center, reading from the Scriptures; and Rev. Edward McNichols, pastor of Our Lady of Lourdes Roman Catholic Church, benediction.

New PS 18, Dr. Rank said, reflects the policy of the Board of Education to "meet acute school housing needs with direct action." It was first listed in the Capital Budget of 1953, and the construction contracts were awarded in December of that same year, he observed.

Three stories in height, the structure contains 18 classrooms, kindergarten, nature study room, and special room for children with retarded mental development; as well as auditorium, gymnasium. library, and combination lunch-

NESS: No matter how often the Herodotus inscription on the facade the street as the road along which of the huge NYC Post Office building-"Neither snow nor rain nor heat nor gloom of night stays these couriers from the swift completion of their appointed rounds" is called to the attention of our natives, few can quote it accurately. This intentness of New Yorkers in so often wending their ways hardly glancing from left to right except for traffic lights is further emphasized by the observations of John Shuttleworth of the MBS "True Detective Mysteries" broadcasts who, with an understandable interest in noticing things others don't, remarks on the many plaques of historical and human significance distributed about the city.

WHERE ARE THEY? How many have noticed, for instance, the tablet at 45 Broadway marking the site of the first residences of white men on Manhattan Island? It was in November, 1613, it says, that the ship Tyger burned offshore and that its captain and crew landed there and built huts. Or that modest plaque on Grove Street in Greenwich Village locating the house in which Thomas Paine wrote his famous "Age of Reason." Or the significance of the small lighthouse tower atop the Seaman's Church Institute in downtown Manhattan erected in 1913 by public subscription in memory of those lost in the tragic sinking of the S.S. Titanic in 1912.

COURSE OF HUMAN EVENTS: There are a few New Yorkers, like Shuttleworth, who find interest in example, there's one on Kings Highway in Brooklyn which identifies

Lord Cornwallis marched his troops in August, 1776, to outflank the Americans in the Battle of Long Island, Nearer to Manhattan in Brooklyn is a plaque showing the location of the headquarters of General Stirling, whose men fought the British in a delaying action in the same battle so that the Americans might eventually retreat across the East River. The retreat continued up Manhattan Island as can be seen by the tablets commemorating the Battle of Washington Heights and the Battle of Harlem Heights.

ON THESE SPOTS: Such students of things less observed hereabout also would integrate into the foregoing notations the tablet at 120 Wall Street identifying it as the spot where once was Murray's Wharf on which General Washington landed April, 1789, to take his oath as first President of the United States. And that the actual stone on which Washington took the oath at Federal Hall (now the Sub Treasury Building) is preserved in a glass case, appropriately identified, in the structure. And that a tablet in the Jewelers' Building, 17 Maiden Lane, marks the location of the John Street Theater, built in 1767 and frequently attended by the first President. A lot to be learned in tracing the movement of historic this city just by looking for things events through such markers. For where you don't expect them.

The Colonial-style, air conditioned building, according to Mr. Thomas, will replace the present branch office now located in a rented store at Hillside Avenue and 250th Street in Bellerose and has become necessary in order to handle the bank's expanding business in this part of Queens.
